THE IVY GREEN. BY CHARLES DICKENS. C. F. CORS.

O, a dainty plant is the ivy green,
That creepeth o'er ruins old!
If right choice food are his meals, I ween,
In his sell so lone and cold.
The walls must be crumbled, the stones decayed,
To pleasure his dainty whim;
And the mouldering—dust that years have made
Is a merry meal for him.
Creeping where no life is seen,
A rare old plant is the lvy green.

ow closely he twineth, how tight he clings To his friend, the huge out-tree!
and slyly he traileth along the ground,
And his leaves he gently waves,
and he joyously twines and hugs around
The rich mould of dead men's graves.
Creeping where no life is seen,
A rare old plant is the ivy green. Whole ages have fled, and their works decay

And nations have scattered been; But the stout old ivy shall never lade From its hale and hearty green. The brave old plant in its lonely days

Shall fatten upon the past; or the stateliest building man can raise is the ivy's food at last. Creeping where no life is seen, A rare old plant is the tvy green THE HAPPY LAND. BY ANDREW YOUNG.

There is a happy land,
Far, far away,
Where saints in glory stand,
Bright, bright as day.
Oh, how they sweetly sing,
Worthy is our Saviour King,
Lond ict his praises ring—
Praise, praise for aye. Come to this happy land— Come, come away; Why will ye doubting stand— Why still delay? Oh, we shall happy be.
When, from sin and sorrow free.
Lord, we shall live with thee—
Blest, blest for aye.

Bright in that happy land Beams every eye: kept by a Father's hand, Love cannot die.

SOUNDING NIAGARA RIVER.

has recently had the Niagara river sounded, a task never before accomplished, owing to the bungling and unscientific means employed by those who at-tempted it. Bars of railroad iron, pails of stones, and all unreasonable bulky and awkward instruments had been attached to long lines, and cast off the railway bridge and elsewhere, but posttively refused t sink. The very bulk of the instruments was sufficient, no matter what their weight, to give the powerful under-current a way to buoy them up upon the surface, or near it. By the depths from the falls to the lower bridge were easily obtained. One of the sounding party says that the approach to the talls in a small boat was made with great difficulty. Great jets of water were thrown out from the falls far into the stream, and the roar was so terrible that no other sound could be heard. The leadsman cast the line. which passed rapidly down, and told of 83 feet. This was quite near the shore. Passing out of the friendly eddy which had aided them in approaching the fails, they shot rapidly down stream. The next cast of the lead told of 100 feet deepening to 192 teet at the inclined railway. The average depth to the Switt drift, where the river suddenly becomes narrow, with a velocity too great to be measured, was 153 feet. Just under the lower bridge the whirlpool rapids set in, and so violently are the waters moved that they rise like
